

THE FUTURE OF RURAL TEXAS

NOV. 9-13, 2020

REGISTER TODAY

Join The Texas Tribune for a week-long virtual series of discussions on how a state with a proud ranching and agricultural history honors its heritage while acknowledging and embracing the realities of the modern world — how, in a era of rapid urbanization, state government continues to provide the resources necessary to accommodate and uplift the nearly 3 million of us (more than the population of 18 states) who still live in rural communities. We'll talk public and higher education, health care, natural resources, infrastructure investment, economic development, broadband access and more, and we'll preview — with legislators, local officials and other sons and daughters of rural Texas — the certain priorities and likely hot buttons of the 87th Legislative Session.
